

VERB

What is a verb ?

A verb is a word which is used to show an action or a state of being. Every sentence must have a verb. The verb is the most important word in a sentence. In a sentence, a verb connects the subject to the object.

There are two different objects: direct object and indirect object.

Examples :-

- She ate an apple. (Here, "an apple" is the direct object).
- He gave his sister a gift. (Here, "his sister" is an indirect object and "a gift" is the direct object).

1. A verb can be just a word.

- She sent a gift for me on my birthday.
- They left the party early.

2. A verb can be more than one word.

- Rajiv is washing his clothes.
- You have broken my dreams.

3. A verb connects the subject to the object.

- My driver drives the car very fast. (Subject: My driver / Object: car)

4. A verb may not have an object.

- The sun shines.
- It is raining.

Kinds of Verbs :-

1. TRANSITIVE VERBS :-

A verb that has a direct object to complete the sentence is a transitive verb i.e A transitive verb must have an object. Without an object, it does not convey a clear meaning.

Examples :-

- He cleared.

The question arises: What did he clear? No one knows the answer to this question as there is no direct object to tell us what he cleared. The meaning becomes clear when an object is added:

- He cleared the exam. (Now we know what he cleared.)

The subject (he) performs the action: cleared. The object of the action verb cleared is the exam.

A transitive verb may take an indirect object. An indirect object is something or someone to whom or for whom the action is carried out.

Examples :-

- He bought her a cake./He bought a cake for her.
- She is reading grandmother the news./She is reading the news to grandmother.

In the first sentence, the indirect object is her as the cake was bought for her. In the second sentence, the indirect object is grandmother as the news was read to grandmother. The indirect object usually comes before the direct object as shown in the above two sentences.

2. INTRANSITIVE VERBS :-

A verb that does not need an object to make its meaning clear is an intransitive verb i.e An intransitive verb does not have an object. Without an object, the meaning is not affected.

Examples :-

- She smiles. / The dog is barking. / Their plane has already taken off.

All the verbs (smiles, is barking, has taken off) are intransitive as they do not need an object to make the meaning clear.

- The villagers caught a lion yesterday, but it escaped this morning.

The verb caught is transitive as it has the direct object 'lion'. The other verb escaped is intransitive since it is not followed by an object.

Verbs that are always intransitive :-

Abound	Lie	Exist	Sit
Arrive	Linger	Faint	Sleep
Bloom	Occur	Fall	Sneeze
Come	Pause	Gallop	Talk
Cough	Pray	Go	Thrive
Cry	Rain	Hesitate	Yawn
Dance	Remain	Laugh
Die	Rise	Ache

Intransitive verbs do not take an object. These verbs are typically followed by a phrase.

Examples :-

- His back garden abounds with weeds. (Weeds is not an object; with weeds is a prepositional phrase.)
- They arrive at the airport as the sun rises. (At the airport is a prepositional phrase. The two verbs do not need to have an object.)
- While the parents are praying, the baby is crying.

Note :- Verbs that are both transitive and intransitive.

Adapt	Fail	Obey	Dance	Break	Hold	See	Leave
Answer	Fill	Open	Drop	Burn	Hurry	Sell	Marry
Ask	Fly	Pull	Eat	Choose	Hurt	Sing
Begin	Grow	Read	End	Climb	Jump	Touch
Borrow	Hang	Ring	Enter	Continue	Watch	Turn
Win	Help	Run	Know	Wash	Move	Meet

Examples :-

- She left the house early. (Transitive)
- She left early. (Intransitive)
- He borrowed some money from the bank. (Transitive)
- He borrowed heavily from the bank. (Intransitive)
- They sold their house to a friend. (Transitive)
- During the busy holiday season, even mediocre items sell easily. (Intransitive)

3. AUXILIARY/HELPING VERBS AND MAIN VERBS :-

All verbs are either auxiliary verbs or main verbs. Auxiliary verbs are also called Helping Verbs and consist of Primary Verbs (be, have, do) and Modal verbs (can, could, will, might, must, etc).

Helping verbs are those verbs that help in the completion of the sentence. In sentences containing the helping verb there will be another verb apart from the helping verb which is known as the Main verb.

Example :-

- She is sleeping in her room. (Main verb: sleeping. Helping verb: is)

Note :- The most common auxiliary verbs are "be, have, and do". Each has different forms.

The different forms of 'be' include 'am, is, are, was, were, and been'.

Examples :-

- He is a Teacher. (Here "is" is Main Verb)
- I was studying hard. (Here "was" is Helping Verb and "Studying" is Main Verb)

Auxiliary verbs commonly combine with other verbs to form tenses. It is very common for a sentence to have two verbs being used side by side.

Examples :-

- The king is riding an elephant.
- Jack has gone with Jill to the zoo.

In the two sentences, there are two verbs in each sentence – is riding and has gone. The first verbs in each pair (is, has) are the auxiliary verbs, while riding and gone are the main verbs.

1. The two verbs combine to form the tenses.

2. The first sentence (The king is riding an elephant) is in the present continuous tense telling us that the action is still going on, i.e. the king is still riding the elephant.

3. The second sentence (Jack has gone with Jill to the zoo) has the present perfect tense. It tells us the action has been completed.

Auxiliary verbs do not always combine with the main verbs to form tenses. When they are on their own, they are no longer auxiliary verbs but acting like the main verb.

Examples :-

- I am efficient. / She is lazy. / He was tall. / We are confused. / They were upset.
- Does she know you? Yes, she does.

We can use auxiliary verbs for emphasis.

Examples :-

- I do like you.
- She did mind what you said.

Modal verbs are used to express ability, possibility, permission, necessity or obligation, advice or suggestion, willingness, etc.

Examples :-

- She can drive a car. (Ability)
- If we don't leave now, we could be late. (Possibility)
- I will help you with your project. (Willingness)
- You might like a ride on a roller coaster. (Suggestion)
- We must get up early tomorrow. (Necessity)

Note :- Verbs shown in this table make up the auxiliary verbs

Primary verbs	be	have	do
Present form	is/am/are	has/have	do/does
Past form	was/were	had	did
Past participle	been	had	done
Modal verbs
will	can	may	shall
would	could	might	should
must	ought to	used to

4. LINKING VERBS :-

search on TG-@freepdfhall

Linking verbs do not tell us 'what the subject does', but 'what the subject is'. A linking verb links the subject to the complement, which states something about the subject.

The complement can be a word, phrase, or clause. The most common linking verbs are the various forms of the auxiliary verb be (am, is, are, was, were). Linking verbs do not take a direct object, and any verb that expresses an action is not a linking verb.

Characteristics of a linking verb :- A linking verb is not an action word.

Examples :-

- He looked at me. (It tells us what he did; looked is an action verb)
- She looked as if she was going to cry. (It doesn't tell us what she did, only how she appeared to be; looked is a linking verb.)

A linking verb is often followed by an adjective, but not a direct object.

Examples :-

- He feels fine. (Feel is a linking verb because it is followed by an adjective.)
- He feels the fine sand of the beach. (Feel is an action verb.)

Special Note :-

We can identify a linking verb by replacing it with to be and see if it makes sense. If it does, it is a linking verb. Otherwise, it isn't. Let's use the following two sentences and replace the verb feels with is.

Examples :-

- He feels fine. = He is fine. (The sentence makes sense, so the verb is a linking verb.)
- He feels the fine sand of the beach. = He is the fine sand of the beach? (The verb is not a linking verb.)

5. REGULAR AND IRREGULAR VERBS :-

The main verbs are classified as regular verbs and irregular verbs. They can be identified by how their past tense and past participle are formed.

Regular verbs :-

The past tense and past participle of regular verbs end in -d or -ed.

- Present tense - touch, kill, pass, rub, stop
- Past tense - touched, killed, passed, rubbed, stopped
- Past participle - touched, killed, passed, rubbed, stopped

Irregular verbs :-

The past tense and past participle of irregular verbs do not follow the above pattern of grammar. They do not end in -d or -ed.

Where all three forms are the same

- Present tense - cost, cut, hurt, put, read, shut, broadcast, set, bet, hit, let, quit etc.
- Past tense - cost, cut, hurt, put, read, shut, broadcast, set, bet, hit, let, quit.
- Past participle - cost, cut, hurt, put, read, shut, broadcast, set, bet, hit, let, quit.

Where all three forms are different

- Present tense - begin, choose, do, go, lie, see, eat, drive, swim, take, break, write, fly etc.
- Past tense - began, chose, did, went, lay, saw, ate, drove, swam, took, broke, wrote, flew.
- Past participle - begun, chosen, done, gone, lain, seen, eaten, swum, taken, broken, written, flown.

Where the past and participle forms can be regular and irregular.

- Present tense - burn, dream, learn, spell, spill.
- Past tense - burned/burnt, dreamed/dreamt, learned/learnt, spelled/spelt, spilled/spilt.
- Past participle - burned/burnt, dreamed/dreamt, learned/learnt, spelled/spelt, spilled/spilt.

6. ACTION VERBS :- Dynamic or action verbs describe things that 'happen within a limited time', things which have a definite beginning and end. Come, bring, buy, get, learn, listen and watch are all examples of dynamic verbs. These verbs may be used in both progressive and simple forms.

Examples :-

- I shall be bringing my pet with me when I visit you on Friday.
- I shall bring my pet with me when I visit you on Friday, if that's all right.
- I learnt how to scuba dive when I was in Goa.
- I was learning how to scuba dive when I heard that you were coming.
- He cycled to the school.
- He is cycling to the school.
- He cycles to work.

7. STATIVE VERBS :- Stative verbs describe state or conditions (experiences, conditions, etc), which continue over a period of time. Love, hate, want, need, hear and see are all examples of stative verbs. These verbs are not normally used in the progressive form. Stative verbs do not describe actions.

Thus, we would say 'I've always liked tennis' and not 'I've always been liking tennis'.

Examples :-

- The two neighbours hate the sight of each other. (Incorrect: The two neighbours are hating the sight of each other.)
- She believes everything that is told to her. (Incorrect: She is believing everything that is told to her.)

Some stative verbs when used in the continuous tense refer to feelings that last briefly. They can be in the continuous form when we use them to describe actions.

Examples :-

- I am regretting what I did just now.
- As usual, he is being provocative.

Table shows some common Stative verbs.

Appear	Love	Smell	Hate	Hope
Be	Matter	Suppose	Have (possess)	Forgive
Believe	Mean	Think	Know	Recognize
Concern	Notice	Trust	Like	Hear
Consist	Owe	Understand	Refuse	Need
Dislike	Own	Want	Remember
Expect	Possess	Wish	See
Feel	Prefer	Taste	Seem
Forget	Realize	Weigh	Belong

Note :- Some verbs can be both stative verbs and action verbs. These verbs are used in the continuous tense when they describe an action.

Examples :-

- I see you are very happy with your new glasses. (state)
- The doctor is not seeing any more patients. (action)
- I have two dogs, one cat and a goldfish. (state)
- What are we having for dinner tonight? (action)
- She thinks you are getting the wrong idea about her. (state)
- We're thinking of quitting smoking. (action)
- She looks gorgeous in this new dress. (state)
- She is looking at a dress on sale. (action)

8. FINITE AND NON-FINITE VERBS :- The finite verb changes with the person and number of the subject. It has the present or the past form. This means a finite verb has tenses. Every sentence must have a finite verb. The following table shows an example of finite verbs.

Person	Present Tense
--------	---------------

	Singular	Plural
First Person	I eat	We eat
Second Person	You eat	You eat
Third Person	He eats	They eat
	She eats	They eat
	It eats	They eat

The verb eat in the above table is a finite verb because it changes with the person and number of the subject. When it is used with the third and singular person, the verb changes to eats.

Nonfinite verb :- The nonfinite verb does not change to reflect singular or plural or tenses. It comes in different form as the following table shows:

Finite verb		Nonfinite verb
-s form	eats, laughs, runs	-ing form	eating, running, using
Present tense	eat, laugh, run	Infinitive	(to) eat, (to) run, (to) use
Past tense	ate, laughed, ran	Past participle	eaten, run, used

As is seen from table 2, the non-finite verb does not have tenses. It has the ending in –ing form, infinitive form and past participle form.

Further examples:

Ending in –ing form: I saw her feeding rabbits.

Infinitive form: To talk with your mouth full is not a nice thing to do.

Past participle form: The prehistoric artifact stolen from the museum was never recovered.

9. PHRASAL VERBS :-

Phrasal Verbs are combinations of Main Verbs with prepositions, with adverbs and sometimes with both adverbs and prepositions that have a different meaning from the individual words used to form them.

Example :-

- Look Up: Verb + Preposition
- Look After: Verb + Adverb
- Look forward to: Verb + Adverb + Preposition

Rules for Usage of Verbs :-

RULE 1 :-

Delexical verbs are common verbs such as “have”, “take”, “make”, or “give” which when used with particular nouns have very little meaning of their own. In these delexical structures, most of the meaning is found in the noun, not in the verb.

- We use “have” with:
 1. food and drink- have a meal/breakfast/lunch etc.
 2. talking -having a chat/talk/conversation, etc.
 3. washing- having a bath/shower/wash, etc.
 4. resting- have a break/ a holiday, etc.
- We use “take” with: risk, a break, a hot bath, advantage, action, risk, your time etc.
- We use “make” with: a comment, an enquiry, a noise, a point, a promise, a sound, a speech, a suggestion, a demand, a gesture, a mistake, arrangements, a choice, a decision, a plan, plans, an appointment, a date etc.
- We use “give” with : a cry, a laugh, a scream, a shout, a whistle, some advice, an answer, some information, an interview, a lecture, some news, a report, a speech, a talk, a warning, etc.

RULE 2 :-

If in a sentence there is use of “It is high time” or “It's time”, before the subject, then the second form of the verb must be used after the subject.

Examples :-

- It is high time they arrived.
- It's time you went to bed. You'll have to get up early tomorrow.

RULE 3 :-

Coordinating Conjunctions (and, but, or, yet, so) and although/though, as, because, till/until, when, whenever, as soon as, while, which, what, that, etc. connect two clauses which have the verbs of the same tense.

Examples :-

- I got up and he left the class.
- As soon as I came here he threatened me.
- Whenever she is stressed, she listens to music.

RULE 4 :-

Prepositions and Articles are always followed by nouns or gerund form of verbs.

Examples :-

- I am thinking about doing the work.
- Arun insisted on going out then.

RULE 5 :-

To' is the only preposition that takes the base form of the verb.

Examples :-

- He is prepared to face obstacles and challenges with determination and resilience.
- I was invited to attend the party.

RULE 6 :-

There are some limited phrases which end with 'To' preposition and prefer a Gerund just after them.

Like- Owing to, look forward to, in addition to, averse to, with a view to, devoted to, object to, be used to, accustomed to, taken to, disposed to, prone to, given to, etc.

Examples :-

- I look forward to meeting you again.
- We are used to going for a walk.
- We should be devoted to making our country corruption free.

Note :- If Verb is used before “Used To” (as in the above given example) then we have to use Gerund after it and if there is no verb before “Used To” then we can simply use the first form of the verb after it.

Example :-

- I used to walk everyday.

RULE 7 :-

Some Verbs are followed by the INFINITIVES:

Agree, desire, hope, plan, attempt, claim, decide, demand, expect, intend, prepare, tend, fail, learn, pretend, want, wish, refuse, need, forget, hesitate, offer, seem, etc.

Example :-

- I want to go with you.
- He failed to understand the exam pattern.

Some Verbs are followed by GERUNDS:

appreciate, admit, delay, miss, report, suggest, deny, postpone, resent, avoid, enjoy, practice, resist, can't help, finish, quit, resume, consider, mind, recall, risk, etc.

Examples :-

- We enjoyed driving the new car.
- I can't help appreciating the book.

RULE 8 :-

“To + adverb + V₁” is a split infinitive. Using split infinitives is an error in the examination. Remove the adverb and use it anywhere in the sentence as per the need.

Example :-

- Everybody has to completely do the work. (incorrect).
- Everybody has to do the work completely. (correct).
- Everyone has to carefully carry the bag. (incorrect).
- Everyone has to carry the bag carefully. (correct).

RULE 9 :-

The following structure is commonly used in English to emphasize simplicity, directness, or the absence of alternative actions.

- “do/does/did + anything/nothing/everything + but + bare infinitive”
- “Another verb (except do/does/did) + anything/nothing/everything + but + to infinitive”.

Example :-

- Can't you do anything but to ask silly questions ?
- Did she do nothing but cry over the failure to get a job ?
